ENVIRON team expands in the South West

January 2009 - ENVIRON is pleased to announce the expansion of its South West team with the arrival of three new consultants.

Vicky Pearson joins ENVIRON from WSP Environment and Energy where she was an integral member of both the national SEA/SA team and the Environmental Planning team in Bristol. She brings a wealth of experience in SEA/SA, Habitats Regulations Assessment of plans and project management of a wide range of differing environmental assessment projects. She has worked for both public sector and private sector clients.

Neil Loescher has moved from the London office of ENVIRON to join the ENVIRON Bath team as a senior consultant specialising in property due diligence, providing technical advice and guidance on environmental issues including Energy Performance Certificates to investors, developers and asset managers. He has undertaken numerous site assessments, inspections and audits, covering a broad range of asset classes and environmental issues and has advised on more than 500 property transactions, including sites across Europe and the US.

Gordon Lee joined ENVIRON from Halcrow where he worked for 8 years as a senior energy engineer on low carbon buildings and renewable energy technologies in their Energy and Sustainable Development group. Gordon works with ENVIRON's planning, sustainability and EIA teams on carbon/energy strategy and renewables integration in both green and brownfield developments.

Gordon has more than 20 years' experience with both technical and policy issues related to sustainability and Carbon Management, including experience in low energy design of buildings, program and project management, HVAC design, corporate carbon management, and renewable energy studies.
